

Tamkang Takes Triple Honors at Media Contests

Three TKU students recently received awards for their entries in separate media competitions. Zheng Nai-chi, a fourth year student from the Department of Mass Communication, won a prize in the 2011 PeoPo Citizen Journalism Awards for her news report “the Disappearing Danshui Riverside” . Her classmate, Hung Chi-fu, and fourth year Department of Information and Communication student, Wen Hao-kai, gained recognition in the 7th Campus Interview Contest for their piece “The Grass Artisan” . At the same time, the Public Television Service Foundation (PTSF) acknowledged Tamkang TV for being one of the PTSF’ s most frequently referred to campus TV stations.

Weitsy Wang, the Chairman of the Department of Mass Communication, accepted the prizes on behalf of the winning TKU students. She commented: “I’ m delighted that Tamkang TV and TKU students have won awards for all their hard work and I hope that in future even more students will take part in such competitions and put all they’ ve learned in class into practice.
