

VARIOUS NATIONAL COQUETTES SHOWN IN FOREIGN LANGUAGE WEEK

Various national coquettes—flamenco, waltz, Japanese fan-dancing and Russian folkdance—were shown in the opening ceremony of the foreign language week, co-sponsored by the Departments of French, English, German, Japanese and Russian.

The dancing performance on Monday officially kicked off this five-day event. In addition to the display of delicious foods and cultural heritage, a wishing stance was set on Poster Street; students have tied their wishes in it, including wish for exams, SARS, and long-lasting friendship, etc.

A series of interesting contests, including beer-drinking and watermelon-cutting contests were held on Tuesday and Thursday, respectively.

A film festival that included the six nations was held on Monday and Tuesday at Ching-sheng Plaza. A Shakespeare play performed in six languages is featured on Thursday.
