

The “End-of-the-World” Christmas Fair

Last week, from December 17 - 22 (2012), 36 TKU student associations came together to hold the “End-of-the-World” Christmas Fair. The fair was held on Poster Street, Tamsui Campus, and featured a variety of creative Christmas-style stalls. One of the more popular stalls sold gingerbread men, while another allowed students to design and make their own gingerbread houses. Three freshmen classmates, who made a gingerbread house together, said “this is our first time making a gingerbread house. It’s not easy to do, as the syrup sticks to your fingers. But it’s really a lot of fun!”

There were also 21 stalls selling hand crafted clothes, ornaments, jewelry, and decorative objects. Things being sold included bags, scarves, mobile phone covers, and so on.

2013/01/04

A stall at the “End-of-the-world Christmas Fair”